At 2:00 p.m. the Committee met at the Capitol steps for departure on a DCED tour conducted by Mark Renda and David Winder.

The State Library was the first stop. Amy Owen and Gerry Buttars directed a tour of the new State Library facilities and showed the materials and services available for the blind and physically handicapped in Utah and surrounding states.

A tour of the Devereaux Mansion was next. Hostesses at the Mansion gave a history of the Mansion and described how it will be used as a hosting center during the 2002 Winter Olympics. Much of the funding for this center will be provided by Qwest. Refreshments were provided at this location.

Max Evans, State History Director, conducted a tour of the Rio Grande Depot. He gave a history of the building and pointed out the needs and plans for the building. Some of the collections were shown to the committee.

Next the Committee visited the Art House, a newly remodeled facility where the State Art Collection is stored. The Division staff showed some of the art pieces and described the traveling art program.

The last stop was the Chase Home in Liberty Park. An Arts staff member showed the newly renovated home and gave its history. She stated the home houses the Folk Arts Program which consists of Folk Art displays and summer concerts.

The Committee returned to the capitol at 5:20 p.m.
